

Daryl Chambers 25 Hydrus
It. To edit, refine and rework

Terrified, the four nervous but brave children approached the creepy door. Anxiously they exchanged nervous looks. Without fear they moved on. First was Crunch, the bobby one, he had flowing brown hair and perfect blue eyes. Next was Roberto, he was the scared one, he had dark vibrant hair and light green eyes. Third was Sharon, she was the brave one, she had light blond hair and lush, mixed eyes with blue and brown. Last was Jax, she had mixed feelings, she had light brown and dark hair, dull hazel eyes. The door was near.

Determined, Crunch faced Roberto. Suddenly Crunch shouted, "Hold that Steak and Spirit into position!" He answered, "I... I am terrified though!"

"Come on you big baby!" he replied, "Flash that torch on that dark coffin Sharon. Join the Steak with that neck Jax, and I will put the crucifix instead of the vampire!" There was no time to confront him. None of them wanted to challenge Crunch. It was all ready. They all held their parts. Not really anyone wanted to do it, however there was no one to replace them. They had to do it now.

Hearts sprinting as fast as a big cat, the children went into Room thirteen. I took a little while for their eyes to get used to the room which was as black as space. The monster's death bed lay instead of them, it was as black as a cat. The blood sucking animal was inside. His pale white skin reflected in the moonlight, he looked at them. Sharon's torch rocked all over the room. The vampire was much bigger than they expected.

Suspicious Roberto held his stake high and started to walk to the vampire and shake his cold blooded heart. Sharon flashed her torch on the ruby red nose coffin.

In a Instant the vampire awoke. His eyes came as red as blood. Grand Shaved the cross in his pale white face, Just then the vampire pushed forward to the children. The four brave warriors threw themselves on top of the black hearted beast.
At that moment Janet threw the rock onto the beast and Roberto penetrated the heart of the vampire with the stake.
Instantly there was a terrifying scream. Nerve. No sound. It's all over!